The Battle.

TRANSLATED FROM SCHILLER, BY SIE E. BULWER LYTTON. Heavy and solema, A cloudy column, brough the green plain they marching came ! cless spread, like a table dread, For the wild grim dice of the iron game Looks are bent on the shaking ground, Hearts best loud, with a knelling sound Gallops the major along the front :-" Halt !" And fettered they stand at the stark command, And the warriors, silent halt !

Swiftly by the breasts that must bear the brunt,

What on the hill-top shines in flowing ! " See you the forman's banners vaving ?" "We see the forman's banners waving !" "God be with ye, children and wife !" Hark to the music-the trum, and the fife-How they ring through the ranks, which they rouse to the strife

Thrilling they sound, with their glorious tone-Thriding they go, through the marrow and bone Brothers, God grant, when this life is o'er, In the life to come that we meet once more See the smoke how the lightning is cleaving anunder ' Hark ! the guns, peal on peal, how they boom in their thunder

From host to host, with kindling sound, The shouting signal circles round; Av, shout it forth to life or death,-Freer already breather the breath ! The war is waging, slaughter raging, And heavy through the reeking pall The iron death-dice fall !

Nearer they close,-fees upon fees, "Beady !"-from square to square it goes. They kneel as one man, from flank to flank, And the fire comes sharp from the foremost rank. Many a soldier to earth is sent, Many a gap by the ball is rent; O'er the corse before springs the hinder man,

That the line may not fail to the fearless van. To the right, to the left, and around and around, Death whirls in its tance on the bloody ground. God's sunlight is quenched in the flery fight, Over the host falls a brooding night! Brothers, God grant, when this life is o'er, In the life to come, that we meet once more ! The dead men lie bathed in the weltering blood, And the living are blent in the slippery flood, And the feet, as they reeling and sliding go, Stomble still on the corses that sleep below. "What! Francis!"-" Give Charlotte my last farewell." As the dying man murmurs, the thunders swell. "I'll give-) God ! are their guns so near !

Bo ! comrades !- you voiley ! look sharp to the rear ! I'll give to thy Charlotte thy last farewell: The friend thou forsaketh thy side may regain !" Hitherward, thitherward reels the fight; Darkly and more darkly day glooms into night; Brothers, God grant, when this life is o'er, In the life to come that we meet once more Hark to the hoofs that galloping go! The adjutants flying-The horsemen press hard on the panting foe,

Their thunder booms, in dyingferror has seized on the dastards all, And their colors fail! Victory :

Closed is the brunt of the giorious fight! And the day, like a conqueror, bursts on the night, Trumpet and fife swelling choral along, The triumph already sweeps marching in song-Farewell, fallen brothers ; though this life be o'er, There's and her, in which we shall meet you once more !

VARIETY.

Days are lost in lamentations over the loss of days. One rose upon a bush, though but a little one, and though not yet blown, proves that which bears it to be a true rose-tree.

All men who do anything must endure a deprecia-tion of their efforts. It is the dirt which their chariot wheels throw up. There is a Gaelic proverb :- " If the best man's faults were written on his forehead, it would make him pull his hat over his eyes."

To give moral subjects their true relief, you require, as in the stereoscope, to look through two glasses— that of the intellect and that of the heart.

A reserved man is in continual conflict with the ocial part of his nature, and even gradges himself the laugh into which he is sometimes betrayed. One is much less sensible of cold on a bright day than on a cloudy one; thus the sunshine of cheerful-ness and hope will lighten every trouble.

Our customs and habits are like the ruts in roads The wheels of life settle into them; and we jog along through the mire, because it is too much trouble to Boldness is blind; whereof it is still in counsel, but good in execution. For in counsel it is good to see langers; in execution, not to see them, except they be very great. Religion is not a thing which spends itself. It is like a river which widens continually, and is never so broad or so deep as at its mouth, where it rolls into the ocean of eternity. Medicine will never remedy bad habits. Indul-gence of the appetite, indiscriminate dosing and drugging, have ruined the health and destroyed the lives of more persons than famine or pestilence. If you will take advice, you will become regular in your habits, eat an adrink only wholesome things, retire and rise very regularly. Make a free use of water to purify the skin; and when sick, take counsel of the best practical man you know, and follow

Where there is much desire to learn, there of necessity will be much arguing, much writing, many opinions, for opinion in good men is but knowledge in the making. A little generous prudence, a little forbearance of one another, and some grains of charity, might win all these diligences to join and unite into one general search after Truth.

THE LOSS OF A WIFE -No man but one who has been called upon to mourn the loss of a beloved companion can appreciate the beauty and truthfulness of the following article which we copy from an ex-

"In comparison with the loss of a wife all other bereavements are triffing. The wife—she who fills so large a space in the domestic heaven; she who has busied herself so unwearily for the precious ones around her; bitter, bitter is the tear that falls upon the cold clay! You stand beside her coffin, and think of the past. It seems an amber colored pathway, when the sun shone on beautiful flowers, and the stars hung glittering over head. Fain would the those your hands may unwillingly have planted; her noble tender heart lies open to your inmost sight. You think of her now as all gentleness, all beauty, all purity. But she is dead! The dear head that has lain upon your bosom rests in the still darkness upon a pillow of clay. The hands that have minis tered so untiringly are folded beneath the gloomy portals, the heart whose every beat measured an eternity of love lies under your feet. The flowers she bent over in smiles, bend now above her in tears, shaking the dew from their petals, that the verdure around her may be green and beautiful.

CHARACTER IS POWER .- It is often said that knowledge is power, and this is true. Skill or faculty of any kind, carries with it superiority. So to a certain extent, wealth is power, and rank is power, and genius has a transcendant gift of mastery over men But higher, purer, and better than all, more consis-tent in its influence and more lasting in its away, is the power of character; that power which emanates from a pure and lofty mind. Take any community, who is the man of most infin ence? To whom do all look up with reverence? Not the 'smartest' man, nor the cleverest politician, nor the most brilliant talker, but he who in a long course of years tried by the extremes of prosperity and adversity, has approved himself to the judgment of his neighbors and all who have seen his life, as worthy to be called wise and good.

OWING TO THE IRREGULARITY OF the mails between San Francisco and the Atlantic States, a portion of my Magazines and Papers are now received by Express, but are subjected to greatly increased charges for freight, &c., Hawaiian postage (52 cents a year.) is now demanded on such foreign periodicals, if sent through the island mails.

Owing to the increased cost in procuring the papers from the East, which may continue during the war, the rates for Subscription on some of the Papers and Magazines has been raised. All who have obtained periodicals from me at less than the prices given below, are notified, that all subscriptions expiring after January 1, 1862, will be charged according to the new scale. This notice includes those who have been supplied at lower rates in connection with the Commercial Advertiser. Those not wishing to continue as subscribers under the new aringement should give me immediate notice IT Subscriptions payable always in advance. LE
